Capt. Sam Whitaker Looks Picture of Health After Intensive Training Course.

Capt. Sam Whitaker is home from Fort Sill, Oklahoma, for a ten days' stay. After his leave of absence, Capt. Whitaker will return to his regiment, which is stationed at Camp Jackson. South Carolina. "When this war is over," stated Capt. Whitaker, "there is no doubt but that this country will have compulsory military training." He will leave Camp Jackson in about ten days.

UNFOUNDED RUMORS CAUSE MUCH ALARM

Negroes Say They Have Been Told That Their Money Is to Be Confiscated.

Dame Rumor has been circulating a report among local colored people that the government was going to take their money to carry on the war. News of the report reached Judge Martin Fleming during a hearing in police court Monday morning, and he promptly announced that he would like to get the starter of it.

One woman was claimed to have drawn her deposit of about $100 from the bank when she heard the voice of Dame Rumor. Attorneys present in court stated their clients had consulted them about their money being taken from them. A well-known colored lawyer said a woman who had $1,200 in the bank came to him and he urged her to let her money stay where it was, It developed that the report has been pretty well circulated.

A Frank Admission. Senator Charles B. Henderson, of Nevada, smiled when reference was made to the beauty of frank admissions, says the Philadelphia Telegraph. He said he was reminded of an incident along that line.

BEAVERS CASE TO BE FURTHER INVESTIGATED

Sum Divine, who was arrested for sellng whisky to soldiers, was tried before inited States Commissioner Sam McAllester Saturday, and on account of his straightforward confession and frank way of relating the whole affair, saying he procured the whisky, he thought, merely for a social time, was dismissed on request of Capt. Kern, who prosecuted the case. The case of Ed Beavers, who was ar rested for the same offense, was con-tinued. Most of the hearing of the Beavers case was completed, but other witnesses were expected to be brought in and the case was continued. Divine is held as a witness to appear in the case against Beavers. The case of Divine was represented by Will Chamlee, and Beavers by Percy Long. On their recognizance by Judge McAllester, both men were allowed their liberty.

RAILWAY OFFICIALS SAY RAILROAD IS TO BLAME Passengers Injured Saturday When Engine Hit Car Are Recovering.

An official of the Chattanooga Railway and Light company stated Mon-day afternoon that it looked like the steam railroad was to blame for N., C. & St. L. train No. 5 striking an East Lake car at the Market street crossing Saturday evening and injuring pas-sengers on the car.

F. E. Plumlee, the motorman; Teddy McHold, a resident of the Northern hotel, and two or three other passen-gers received injuries, According to the street railway official, a freight train cleared the crossing and Motorman Plumlee started across when the passenger train came along and struck the car. Plumlee is said to be an experienced man, having been in the company's employ for about fourteen years.

The injuries of the motorman and passengers are understood not to have been of a serious nature.
